

Your Label Software Company Shouldn't Strand you without Tech Support

Why do so many companies promise "user-friendly" software and then charge for tech support? Our tech support has been free for over 23 years, both to resellers and end-users. We can afford this because our BarTender label software and detailed help system are truly easy to use. We have also spent hundreds of thousands of dollars translating the software and manual into over 20 languages. We thoroughly train our technicians and hire enough to handle more than 90% of all calls when they are received. And the few calls that we must return are usually made within an hour. Of course this costs us money, but we think it is just smart business. To
